

Just to confirm... (functional language for meetings)

1. Watch a video [https://youtu.be/u56akSmWx_8] and answer the questions.

- Do you think the video is funny?
- What are the people doing in the video?
- What topics do you usually discuss in meetings at your company?

2. Talk about your experience with work meetings using the ideas below.

EXAMPLE: In my company, there are usually two meetings every week. First, we meet on Mondays to discuss goals for the week and then we often meet on Thursdays to discuss our progress and any problems.

no meetings	←→	daily meetings
with a few people	←→	with many people
online	←→	offline
in your language	←→	in other languages
formal	←→	informal
short	←→	long

3. Look at the three types of meetings in the boxes and think of two topics people usually discuss in each of them.

weekly team meeting

one-to-one feedback meeting
(e.g. with a manager)

meeting with a client

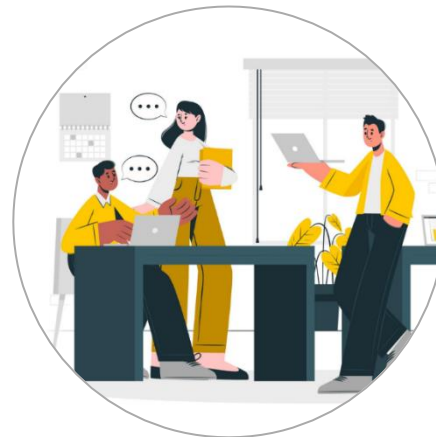

4. Read the statements below and decide which of the meetings from ex. 3 they describe. Explain your opinion.

- I think this is the most stressful meeting.
- People are usually very productive during this meeting.
- I feel (or would feel) more confident in this meeting than in the other two.
- This meeting requires the most preparation.
- It's a great meeting to learn something new.
- Sometimes this meeting could be just one email.

Just to confirm... (functional language for meetings)

5. Choose three situations that have happened to you during a meeting and share more details about them.

- a time you didn't understand someone
- a time you didn't agree with someone
- a time you were not sure if something was a good idea
- a time you suggested an idea
- a time you agreed to do something
- a time you asked someone to do something

6. Complete the gaps in the dialogues with the phrases in the boxes.

Could you

How about

I can take care of that

I don't think that will work

I'm not sure about that

Just to confirm

What do you mean by

You're right

A. a: When should we discuss the project?

b: _____ we meet on Thursday morning?

B. a: _____ send me the agenda for the meeting?

b: Sure, I'll email it to you this afternoon.

C. a: I think we can finish this report today.

b: _____. We still have a lot of work to do.

D. a: We need to improve our client communication.

b: _____ 'client communication'? Meetings with clients?

a: No, I just think we should send them updates more often.

E. a: We should move the meeting to next week. We need more time to prepare.

b: _____. The team needs to update the presentation. Let's reschedule it for Monday.

F. a: Let's discuss it in our next meeting.

b: _____, the meeting is at 10 a.m. tomorrow, right?

a: Yes, that's correct.

Just to confirm... (functional language for meetings)

G. a: We need to check the presentation slides before the meeting. Who can do that?

b: _____. I'll do it now.

H. a: We could discuss it tomorrow at 5 p.m.

b: _____. Many people leave the office by 4:30.

7. Read the dialogue and replace the underlined parts with the phrases in the box.

Manager: Let's talk about the marketing campaign. Our plan is to finish it by the end of next week.

Employee 1: That's impossible. We still need to create the presentation and check the details.

Employee 2: I agree with you. We need at least a month to do all the tasks.

Manager: I don't think that's true. If we divide the tasks, we can finish on time.

Employee 1: Can you explain that?

Manager: I mean each person can work on one part of the project. For example, someone can create the presentation, and someone else can check the details.

Employee 2: Why don't I work on the presentation?

Employee 1: Is it OK if you also write a summary for the team to review?

Employee 3: Sure, I will do that.

Manager: I want to make sure we will meet again on Friday to check the progress, correct?

Employee 2: Yes, that's the plan.

Could you

How about

I can take care of that.

I don't think that will work.

I'm not sure about that.

Just to confirm,

What do you mean by

You're right.

Just to confirm... (functional language for meetings)

8. You and your partner are employees at a company. You are going to role-play two meetings. In the meetings, decide who does which task, explaining why you can or can't do something. In the first meeting, Student A uses phrases from Set 1, and Student B uses phrases from Set 2. In the second meeting, swap sets: Student A uses Set 2 and Student B uses Set 1.

EXAMPLE:

Student A: How about you prepare the presentation?

Student B: I don't think that will work. I have to leave early today. Could you do it?

Student A: Sure, I can take care of that. And I think you should visit the client's office because they know you very well.

Student B: You're right. I'll do that tomorrow. And don't forget that we need to finish the report!

Student A: What do you mean by that? I think it's ready.

Student B: I'm not sure about that. We need to update some figures.

Student A: OK, I'll do that! Just to confirm, you're going to the client's office tomorrow and I'm going to prepare the presentation and finish the report.

Student B: Yes, that's right.

MEETING 1 - TASKS

1. Call a client to plan the next meeting.
2. Create a summary of the team's progress.
3. Book a room for the next team meeting.

MEETING 2 - TASKS

1. Send updates to a client.
2. Prepare the agenda for the next meeting.
3. Pick up documents at the post office.

SET 1

What do you mean by...?
How about...?
I can take care of that.
Just to confirm,

SET 2

You're right.
I don't think that will work.
I'm not sure about that.
Could you...?